

SPONSORSHIP INVITATION

Georgia State University College of Law is honored to host the 49th Annual American Society of Law, Medicine, & Ethics Health Law Professors Conference, June 3-5, 2026. This conference, the oldest and largest of its kind, serves as the premier meeting ground for professionals who teach health law or bioethics in schools of law, medicine, public health, health care administration, pharmacy, nursing and dentistry, with representatives from 40 states and 10 countries. Presentations and seminars conducted by leading health law educators foster and inspire discussion and discourse among conference participants. The program is designed to update participants on critical issues at the forefront of law, medicine and ethics, and provide them the opportunity to share and disseminate new strategies, ideas and materials. Accordingly, conference attendees return to their home universities prepared to equip a new generation of students with the necessary knowledge, skills and values needed for professional practice.

In addition to the plenary and concurrent sessions, the conference offers a variety of select sponsorship opportunities for prominent and important organizations such as your own, including:

- The welcome reception where conference attendees will gather and network
- The keynote lecture
- A special evening event at the Carter Center - a nongovernmental organization that's dedicated to improving lives by resolving conflicts, advancing freedom and democracy and preventing diseases

Through sponsorship of one or more of these events, you can introduce or reconnect your organization with a diverse group of professionals committed to health law innovation through education. Sponsorship visibility extends to educators from nearly 100 law schools and approximately 50 professional schools of medicine, public health, nursing and business.

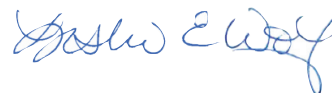

In return for sponsorship of the conference, your organization will benefit through:

- Identification as a thought leader knowledgeable about issues critical to the future of the health law professions
- Opportunities to promote your organizational or corporate brand via a multitude of media and communication vehicles (PR, print, advertising, web, onsite) to the largest audience of interdisciplinary health law teaching professionals in the nation
- Complimentary passes to various conference events and sessions with opportunities to meet and network with conference participants

We invite you to partner with us on this important occasion. Please note that we have additional benefits to our sponsorship packages that we would be happy to discuss further. All gifts to sponsor the ASLME Health Law Professors Conference hosted by the College of Law, made through the Georgia State University Foundation, are tax deductible as allowed by law. Thank you for your consideration.

Courtney Anderson, Dean
Georgia State University College of Law

Leslie E. Wolf, Ben F. Johnson Jr. Chair in Law, Director
Center for Law, Health & Society